

The highlight of the day was the auction. Brent Kelly was our auctioneer and we sold to the highest bidder a little bit of everything. A big item on the auction was our homemade quilts made by the Relief Society. Entertainment was held through out the day with baby contests, talent shows, guest speakers, senior citizens band and all.

To end the day we had a Bar-B.Q. Delicious meal, tender meat and all the trimmings.

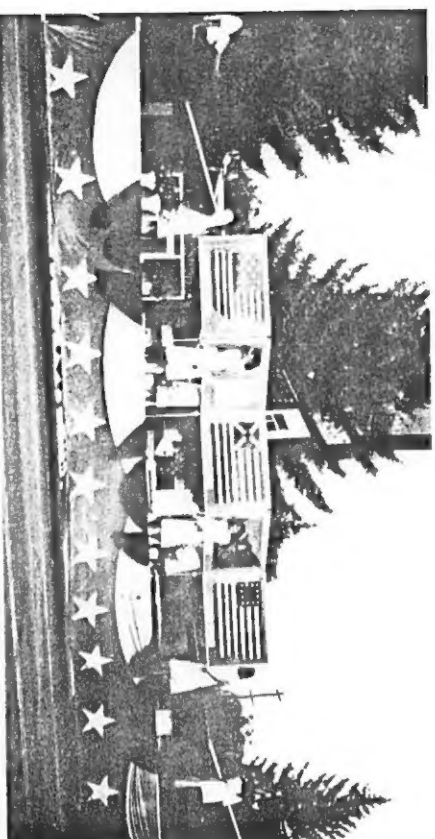

Our celebration fulfilled a community need and helped us with our ward budget. It also brought ward members closer together, working for a common goal. A lot of hard work, but fun for all, perhaps we will see you there next year celebrating our nations birthday and renewing friendships.

HISTORICAL NOTE:

The Fourth of July takes on a deeper meaning this year 1987, as we commemorate the 200th anniversary of the signing of the constitution of the United States. This Bicentennial serves to remind us of what America stands for, and also gives this nation purpose and meaning.

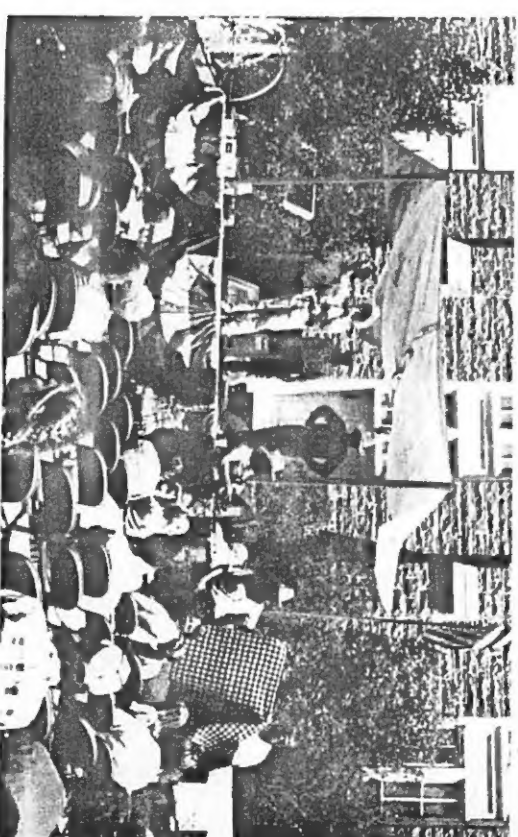

Just like the success of our wonderful ward celebration depends upon each and every person's effort, does the strength of our nation depend on "We the People."
